
Glare shield?

No, not where one places the MRX. I was wondering if others had the problem of display readability in direct sunlight. I have a Diamond Star, and with that big canopy, I'm often cupping my hand over the unit to get the glare off the display. A small plastic hood which snaps on the unit to shield the display would work well. I haven't tried to make one yet. Is this something Zoon might be offering as an accessory? I'd be happy to Beta test it...
