
Pressing the Power Button

Posted by faq - 2007/09/13 09:39

Occasionally, when the power button is pushed, the unit turns off as soon as the button is released.

This system is turned on through a momentary press of the power button for less than one second. If the power button is held down for too long, the system will shut off when pressure is released. Press the power button for no more than one second, then release.
